

Australian National University

DIRECTOR (DEAN), ANU MEDICAL SCHOOL

The Australian National University (ANU) is delighted to offer an outstanding opportunity to play a major leadership role at one of Australia's foremost research universities, helping to shape the future of medicine at ANU.

We are seeking to appoint a dynamic and strategic leader to the role of Director (Dean) of the ANU Medical School. The Director will lead the ANU Medical School, working collegially and collaboratively across the University, ACT Health, the local hospitals and community-based health sector to continue the success of the School through excellence in research, education and clinical practice.

Reporting to the Dean, ANU College of Medicine, Biology and Environment, the Director of the ANU Medical School will play a leading role in developing further the vision for health and medical sciences at the ANU. The Director of the Medical School will represent the University at "Dean of Medicine" forums and will work to foster strong relationships with key stakeholders including Government, Industry bodies and other universities.

We are seeking an inspirational and experienced leader, with a strong track record in medical and clinical research as well as leading practice in medical education. The appointee must be eligible to register as a medical practitioner in Australia.

Closing date

Wednesday 12 October 2016
at midnight AEDST.

Enquiries

For further information about the position and for a confidential discussion please contact:

Clare Schnelle, Research Associate, Perrett Laver.

clare.schnelle@perrettlaver.com or on +61 2 8354 4004.